- Object-oriented programming (e.g., Java, C++, C#, or equivalent)
- Relational databases and analytics
- Financial and accounting concepts and data structures, including account management, trading, fixed income, and equities
- SQL database analysis, business intelligence, and reporting tools
- SQL database performance tuning
- Security and encryption concepts
- Server-side scripting technologies such as PowerShell

Thank you for considering me to become a member of your team.

Sincerely,

Dylan Schroeder
