

Example of Analytical Scientist Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our growing company is looking to fill the role of analytical scientist. To join our growing team, please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications.

Responsibilities for analytical scientist

- Experience in an analytical services laboratory
- Advise and influence colleagues on analytical measurement selection to serve feedback loops in product/process development and in productivity initiatives
- Recommend new instrumentation/capabilities and successfully justify their acquisition
- Critically analyze test data/results and provide timely and business-relevant interpretation to management
- Collaborate cross-functionally to relate coffee and beverage aroma and taste drivers to consumer product experiences
- Identify, engage, and manage external resources as required to best serve project analytics
- Translate appropriate testing regimens when scaling products and processes from laboratory to pilot plant to production facilities
- Work independently and successfully with limited supervision or guidance on assigned tasks and projects
- Maintain the high level of confidentiality required in an R&D environment
- Follow established procedures and methodologies and contributes to completion of routine scientific/technical tasks and has limited discretion to vary from established procedures

Qualifications for analytical scientist

- Additionally the candidate must have the ability to multitask, support several

- Ability to review, compile, and analyze information to prepare reports
- Expertise in assays used to test and characterize biological products
- Identifies and troubleshoots any problems in the execution of experimental processes
- Should have clear and effective written and oral communication skills
- Doctoral or Masters Degree preferred