

Example of Chief Scientist Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is looking for a chief scientist. To join our growing team, please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications.

Responsibilities for chief scientist

- Manage team responsible for sample and product development, material evaluation, and battery application testing
- Assist in development of IP strategy for battery materials and evaluation of the IP landscape in critical application areas
- Interact with customers to understand needs and help to translate these to product opportunities
- Work in cross-functional team consisting of marketing, sales, engineers, and manufacturing to advance projects
- Responsible for the development strategy, technical path, key technology direction and plan of the electric & intelligent & interconnect vehicle, make 3-5 roadmap planning, create a competitive plan, strategy, and report to the corporation senior level
- Responsible for team establishing, make whole industry cooperation strategy and standard, standard and patent layout
- Develop, control, and approve all rubber recipes for all products developed and manufactured in all global locations
- Lead the compliance of Global Material Standards
- Establish and maintain online data storage for all facilities
- Manage materials technicians and scientists at each facility to follow standard global practices and data management

Qualifications for chief scientist

- Industry thought leader with a track record in developing new analytics

- Ability to work with cross functional teams and multiple stakeholders
- Ability to effectively engage clients in discussions related to growth and solutions and develop relationships
- Master's / Bachelor's degree in Computer Science with Mathematics and Statistics or equivalent subject (PhD preferred)
- Show us your track record in designing useful, consumer-oriented BigData applications