

Example of Clinical Development Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is growing rapidly and is searching for experienced candidates for the position of clinical development. We appreciate you taking the time to review the list of qualifications and to apply for the position. If you don't fill all of the qualifications, you may still be considered depending on your level of experience.

Responsibilities for clinical development

- Manages aggressive timelines
- Monitor clinical trial progress including, but not limited to, drug safety, assessments and tracking of AEs, SAE and protocol deviations
- Help create budgets and progress reports
- Serve as a Clinical Science representative on cross-functional teams as assigned, , Protocol Execution Team, Safety Sub-Team, Biomarker Sub-Team, cross-functional initiatives
- In conjunction with the Medical Director, create and or review presentations for internal and external meetings (e.g., Investigator meetings, pre-study site selection visits (PSSV) and site initiation visits (SIVs), Study Coordinator and CRA training, Advisory Boards, and internal and external medical/scientific meetings)
- Works with business development to identify and select consultants, vendors, contract research organizations (CROs)
- Assist in the conduct of study site initiation visits (preparation, personnel training,) and study start-up + close-out meetings, global investigator meetings (preparation of the scientific and medical communication)
- Ensure partnerships are implemented according to ethical/regulatory/legal requirements
- Review/contribute and author presentations, medical publications, posters, emerging from the team and its affiliates
- Works on new initiatives and special projects as directed by President, Sarah

Qualifications for clinical development

- Strong team player, conflict resolution skillsMarketing
- Collaborate with stakeholders across the company (product, legal, finance, sales, marketing, oncology,) to properly identify, prioritize, and execute on cross-industry collaboration/partnership opportunities
- Lead all aspects of deal execution, including identification and prioritization of partners, strategic and financial assessment, transaction structuring and negotiation, follow through to results, and relationship management
- You understand the common challenges faced by healthcare providers and life sciences firms related to clinical trials and have experience solving these problems
- You have robust project management skills with demonstrated success in bringing highly complex, cross-functional projects to completion
- You have exceptional written and communication skills and experience developing high profile external relationships