

Example of Development Chemist Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is hiring for a development chemist. Please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications. While this is our ideal list, we will consider candidates that do not necessarily have all of the qualifications, but have sufficient experience and talent.

Responsibilities for development chemist

- Plan, organize and lead applications development and technical service to provide solutions to customers in the flexible molded Polyurethane markets within the Americas region
 - Lead or participate in multi-regional, multi-functional product development teams
 - Interact with both internal and external customers during the product development process
 - Within cell culture development you lead the media development & media preparation laboratory
 - As Head of Laboratory you supervise and develop technicians, scientists, and students
 - Covering novel technologies you shape and steer projects and work packages
 - In Late Stage projects, you cover aspects such as risk assessment, process transfer and scale-up to commercial scale and closely interact with the manufacturing department
 - You represent the Cell Culture Development disciplines in project teams depending on level of experience
 - You act as a coordinator of internal and external collaborations
 - You are the key contact for internal and external customers for all media topics, for example IP or troubleshootings
-

- Min 2 years technical experience in the cosmetic industry
- BS in Chemistry with formulation background
- Expertise in chemistry, understanding surface-interface properties and surface characterization
- Experience and understanding of formulation of surfactant and polymer systems
- Ability to work independently and to drive the project forward with minimum supervision
- Be able to think out of the box and willing to take an extra step to get job done