Our company is growing rapidly and is looking for a director, enterprise architecture. We appreciate you taking the time to review the list of qualifications and to apply for the position. If you don't fill all of the qualifications, you may still be considered depending on your level of experience.

Responsibilities for director, enterprise architecture

- Serves as an expert of how digital technology can add value in sales, marketing and customer service functions, and how it can be leveraged to enhance enterprise productivity
- Extensive experience with Digital Sales and Marketing technologies, including B2B and B2C portals
- Drives global, enterprise level implementations of digital technology strategy to support the business, informed by the business strategy, market trends, and the competitive landscape
- Comprehensive understanding of social, mobile, and web technologies, ESB /API Management platforms
- Critical member of the COE's leadership team
- Owns the reference architectures and overall enterprise architectural blueprint
- Fosters collaboration on integrated technology planning
- Develop framework objectives with strict timelines for delivery, organize, and multitask on a variety of projects at once
- Collaborate on vendor and contract management with IT leaders and procurement
- Develop a team that is culturally and structurally compatible with the company

- Breadth/depth of knowledge of multiple technologies and the application to business problems across technical architectures and functions
- Skilled practitioner in Product Life Cycle Management with a deep understanding of software design & development methodologies
- Deep understanding of key trends in technology, software, data management architecture
- 5+ years of experience in enterprise web content management and enterprise search platforms
- Top Secret Clearance is a highly desired
- Must be familiar with standard computing technology platforms such as J2EE, .Net