

Example of Director, Product Development Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our innovative and growing company is searching for experienced candidates for the position of director, product development. To join our growing team, please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications.

Responsibilities for director, product development

- Works with Sales, IT and Operations to develop new product initiatives and technologies and leads research on competitor programs
- Coordinate with various departments throughout the organization to move new product from conception to production
- Champion new product opportunities in the consumer market segment
- Collaborate with senior managers and perform market research to identify opportunities to develop new products to fill gaps in the current consumer product line
- Create financial projections for the new product
- Work with Editorial newsrooms to define specifications for new product
- Support Production and Design during weekly W.I.P
- Coordinates all phases of new product development, including research and design, pricing, proposition/marketing for MyMediaInfo, the web-based SaaS media intelligence solution
- Serves as the product owner for scrum team(s), manages product prioritization and backlog, and authors user stories
- Manages relationship with existing 3rd party content and capability vendors, and makes build/partner recommendations to fill content/feature gaps

Qualifications for director, product development

- High end CG / Art production experience preferred (Games or Film)

- Advanced degree in Chemistry, Chemical Engineering, Pharmacy, or closely related field is desirable
- Significant experience in formulation development, process development and / or pharmaceutical manufacturing
- Detailed knowledge of European and US regulatory requirements for drug products
- Experience in API synthesis and manufacturing is desirable