

Example of EHS Analyst Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is hiring for an EHS analyst. If you are looking for an exciting place to work, please take a look at the list of qualifications below.

Responsibilities for EHS analyst

- Ensure, where possible, that global solutions are scalable
- Seek opportunities to develop and maintain knowledge of business processes, application functionality and configuration
- Submit written project status and time
- Assists the data analysis team for EHS data tracking and trending to provide support to business unit and division managers through application interface or business intelligence tools
- Uses business intelligence tools such as Spotfire and Excel to retrieve, analyze and report data
- Works with information technology to build reports
- Conducts analysis of business and user needs by gathering requirements through observation, receiving, and obtaining information from all relevant sources
- Documents requirements following established methods to assist in defining system scope
- Evaluates business implications of the application technology to the current business environment
- Participates in systems development from the business process perspective

Qualifications for EHS analyst

- Highly skillful to work in diverse environment at individual level team
- Ability to manage multiple projects concurrently including large and complex programs operational projects

- Possess the ability to identify business change management implications associated with the desired project goals
- ECC 6.0 ERP integration with products such as PP, SD, MM, QM, Distribution, PLM
- Reading and good understanding of ABAP code