

Example of Engineer, Production Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our innovative and growing company is hiring for an engineer, production. Please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications. While this is our ideal list, we will consider candidates that do not necessarily have all of the qualifications, but have sufficient experience and talent.

Responsibilities for engineer, production

- Identify synergies between the three LAOHC operating plants to maximize profitability and efficiency
- Support the TICA organization through the identification and implementation of improvement opportunities
- Work closely with maintenance personnel and the plant gatekeeper/activity coordinator to maintain equipment and improve reliability
- Work closely with technical contacts at downstream user plants to ensure customer needs are understood and met
- Participates in operator panel reviews
- Participates in site or business level teams as department representative
- Undertake underground inspections for all stopes in regards to QaQc of drilling and blasting activities and identify possible shortcomings within the proposed weekly and monthly schedules
- Consult with the scheduling engineer on creation of the week schedule
- Actively participate on the creation of the weekly and 12 week rolling plan
- Undertake all stope design, drill design, charge plans and remote plans

Qualifications for engineer, production

- Typically, five or more years of experience in audio-for-television engineering or a related field is required
- Additional high-level experience, particularly in large television or related

- The person filling this position will need to possess a good balance of digital audio and television engineering skills and will need to demonstrate proficiency in working with computer-based production systems
- Having had responsibilities in previous large scale network television systems, live remotes or in studio production environments is desired
- A successful candidate will be a self-starter and will have exceptional organizational and client service skills
- Military or industry related experience