Our growing company is searching for experienced candidates for the position of graduate research assistant. To join our growing team, please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications.

Responsibilities for graduate research assistant

- Establish and maintain consistent office hours to ensure effective and regular project function
- Maintain up-to-date scientific knowledge in his/her research field
- There will be routine maintenance work for supporting the laboratory such as general laboratory inventory, autoclaving and supplying stock reagents for tissue culture as required for own research project
- Research on reporters, media outlets, social media opportunities
- Preparation of research findings on members of the media
- Design, analyze, optimize prototypes and new systems for animal behavior studies
- Design and execute in vivo behavior experiments
- Locate research on the Native American tribe known as the Anasazi—today referred to as the Pueblo Peoples or the Ancestral Puebloans—in the past, archeological expeditions to uncover artifacts and settlements that have taken place since the disappearance of the tribe
- Summarize research on the theories surrounding the disappearance of the Anasazi
- Research articles and books—both scholarly and in the popular press—that deal with the subject of the Anasazi, their life, and their eventual disappearance

Qualifications for graduate research assistant
- Candidates can be from any field of studies
- Proficiency in research, writing and editing
- Skills to implement mathematical algorithms in matlab and C
- If selected, you must file tax forms at the university if you are a first time student employee
- A profound understanding and ability to summarize academic writing