Our company is growing rapidly and is hiring for an IT development manager. Thank you in advance for taking a look at the list of responsibilities and qualifications. We look forward to reviewing your resume.

Responsibilities for IT development manager

- Overall accountability for end-to-end delivery of projects, design and quality of solutions
- Provide directional inputs for the project team in development and design
- Serve as solution architect on large, complex projects
- Provide accurate and timely updates to required stakeholders
- Perform project reviews on a consistent basis to ensure project delivery is on time and on budget
- Participate in review of work products such as requirements, code, designs, and test plans produced by team members
- Contribute to discussions on implementation of IT strategy on a regional basis and implement objectives, as appropriate
- Managing day-to-day planning, scheduling, tracking and reporting for web project-related initiatives
- Manage projects from design to testing, including new programs, enhancements and modifications
- Develop and maintain project and operational reporting to demonstrate quality execution of project commitments (budget, benefits,) and adherence to service level commitments

Qualifications for IT development manager

- Anticipates and reviews functional and business specifications from the business and defines detailed .NET technical specifications place and affirmatively followed by the development team

- Manage the software lifecycle from planning, through resource management, and eventual testing and delivery to production
- Oversee design, development and unit testing of application components
- Responsible for ensuring that software components are factored into discrete modules that can be developed and deployed independently from each other
- 7+ years of software development, design or architectural experience in a financial service or capital markets organization