Our company is hiring for a lead researcher. Thank you in advance for taking a look at the list of responsibilities and qualifications. We look forward to reviewing your resume.

Responsibilities for lead researcher

- Identify and leverage appropriate drug content resources
- Manage projects and provide functional oversight into project management activities - Participate in client support activities and documentation
- Provide strategic and tactical insights that drive and inform design and development for Search
- Provide highly advanced technical leadership to cyber security projects
- Develop new program growth opportunities through interactions with current and potential sponsors and the development of research proposals
- Partner with other cyber security experts internally and externally to share relevant knowledge, working to fulfill deliverables as a team
- Leverage existing work, internal resources and partnerships to develop new capabilities to increase the impact of LLNL
- Work closely with program leadership to ensure coordination and leveraging across the portfolio
- Actively participate in strategic planning for the Cyber and Infrastructure Resilience Program
- Ability to run complete user-centric research studies end-end from scoping the problem, forming hypothesis, identifying, and working with recruiting agencies to find interviewees, conducting the research, and drawing deep user insights and converting them into actionable clear slides for clients

Qualifications for lead researcher

- 4 years of experience in a Research role or in another UX role
- Exceptional skills in problem solving, ideation and communication
- Basic level SPSS knowledge
- Recognized as deeply knowledgeable and experienced in their space
- Informatics expert with a history of innovation and entrepreneurship