

Example of Life Science Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is growing rapidly and is looking to fill the role of life science. We appreciate you taking the time to review the list of qualifications and to apply for the position. If you don't fill all of the qualifications, you may still be considered depending on your level of experience.

Responsibilities for life science

- Maintain meticulously detailed records and documentation of experiments, observations, data and analyses
- Preparation of tissue specimens and reagents for immunostaining and microscopy, including chemical fixation of tissue, resin embedding, ultrathin sectioning, immunofluorescent labeling, perfusion fixation
- Operate and maintain fluorescent microscopes
- Assist in the reconstruction and analysis of volumetric image data
- Assist in laboratory process logging and record keeping
- Perform basic laboratory maintenance and organizational tasks, including maintaining lab stocks, managing chemical inventory and safety records, and providing general lab support as needed
- Offer suggestions regarding modifications to procedures and protocols in collaboration with graduate post-doctoral fellows
- Oversee the maintenance of a purpose built animal facility for fish
- Help orient and train new staff or students, including undergraduates, in laboratory techniques
- Participate effectively in the organization and operation of a large, successful, interactive and cooperative research group

Qualifications for life science

- Self-motivated with the ability to work independently while under guidance

- 80%+ of time spent in the field, willingness to travel and valid driving license required
- Proven ability to sell at all levels
- Minimum of Bachelor of Science or equivalent, Graduate Degree preferred
- 5-7 years of directly related sales experience preferred with proven track record in Life Science Industry
- Experience with database management and analysis desirable