

Example of Music Professor Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is growing rapidly and is searching for experienced candidates for the position of music professor. If you are looking for an exciting place to work, please take a look at the list of qualifications below.

Responsibilities for music professor

- Other duties as assigned, based on qualifications, interests, and departmental needs
- Teach applied clarinet lessons to undergraduate and graduate music majors and minors
- Maintain national and regional visibility as a performer/pedagogue as part of professional development
- Participate in on-campus faculty performances
- Advise undergraduate and graduate students, participate in auditions, serve on committees, and perform other university and professional service as appropriate
- Applicant must be willing and available to address responsibilities during the regular work week and on weekends, as needed
- Recruiting activities may include visiting secondary schools, offering workshops, participating in summer programs, and adjudicating
- Direct the university's Symphonic Wind Ensemble and other ensembles in the band area, including direction/oversight of the university's athletic bands
- Teach applied studio lessons in area of expertise
- Teach courses that would include, but are not limited to Conducting, Orchestration, Instrumental Ensemble Methods, Marching Band Methods, Instrumental Pedagogy, and Instrumental Techniques

Qualifications for music professor

- Successful experience in promoting graduate music education research as it relates to improving results in the classroom
- Minimum of three years teaching related music classes at the university level
- Significant professional experience as a performer, recording artist and/or composer
- Exceptional knowledge and skill with current music software and hardware
- Demonstrated excellence as an administrator with a distinguished record of continuing research/creative activity