

Example of Payments Product Manager Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our innovative and growing company is looking to fill the role of payments product manager. If you are looking for an exciting place to work, please take a look at the list of qualifications below.

Responsibilities for payments product manager

- Support the Product Management Leadership's strategy by articulating the vision and mission of the product roadmap, including implementation and prioritization
- Build processes to ensure we scale payments efficiently
- Aid in the management of relationships with new and existing payments vendors
- Identify important trends to incorporate into business strategy (changing regulatory environments, payments industry, aggregator models, e-commerce, key industry segments, etc within the region)
- Support governance processes for merchant payments
- Draw on internal/external market research and competitive intelligence in order to identify new market opportunities and to differentiate UL Transaction Security from competitors and the market
- Assist in defining product roadmap
- Work with customers, development, support, sales, marketing and the management team to design features and specifications that will grow UL Transaction Security's revenues and increase customer satisfaction
- Translate market trends and company vision into product requirements and functional specifications
- Work with the development team on wireframes and prototypes to enhance the usability and functionality of the application

- Needs to take initiative and be resourceful
- Detail oriented, Comfortable with managing technical/new product development processes
- Simplifier but at the same time thinks big, takes smart risks, is innovative and can think out of the box
- Builds a strong vendor network and participates in key industry forums and applies knowledge gained to the role
- Becomes an expert in the emerging payments space and its challenges/opportunities
- Builds and maintains strong relationships with key business partners