

Example of Research RN Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our company is growing rapidly and is looking for a research RN. If you are looking for an exciting place to work, please take a look at the list of qualifications below.

Responsibilities for research RN

- Work under specific instructions to assist with clinical trial tests and procedures
- Assist with routine data verification and quality control, ensuring data integrity and consistency with prescribed study protocol
- Provide general office management to keep operations running smoothly
- Collect, process, and assist in the compilation and verification of research data, samples and/or specimens (following strict protocol and detailed instructions)
- Enter data forms and documents into databases and other document formats
- Provide assistance to Director of Clinical Research by organizing files, projects, and data entry
- Maintain current awareness and knowledge of research protocols
- Coordinate care of patients enrolled to oncology clinical trials including patient eligibility, coordination of tests and procedures, and education of patients, families, and medical staff
- Be responsible for patient advocacy, protocol submissions, and assurance of compliance with federal and international human subjects regulations
- Maintain current nursing knowledge related to assessment, planning, implementation and evaluation and care of adult oncology patients

Qualifications for research RN

- Analyze clinical research protocols for appropriateness to open based on

- Provide ongoing assessment of oncology patients enrolled to complex cancer treatment clinical trials
- Provides a safe environment for patients, families, and clinical staff at all times through compliance with all federal, state, and professional regulatory standards as issued through OSHA and the CDC
- Minimum of one (1) year of job-related experience required
- Pediatric RN experience required
- American Heart Association BLS certification required upon hire