Our growing company is searching for experienced candidates for the position of service information developer. If you are looking for an exciting place to work, please take a look at the list of qualifications below.

Responsibilities for service information developer

- Photographs taken to support product service procedures and create the needed graphics
- To develop and electronically author Service information(Disassembly and Assembly Information) for delivery via the Service Information System (SIS) to dealers and customers worldwide
- Continuous interaction with Mechanical Lab professionals, Project leaders, Product design and Service support Engineers and the use of a variety of corporate systems and resources
- SID will have continuous interaction with Project leaders, Product design support Engineers and the use of a variety of corporate systems and resources
- Proactively communicate with internal and external customers to understand their challenges and provide innovative technical solution accordingly
- Plan, build, deploy and support impactful solutions
- Develop configurable and scalable web applications
- Write scripts to streamline and automate operational processes
- Build meaningful and intuitive reports, summaries and dashboards
- Improve understanding of our current operations through research, analysis, and summarization of data

Qualifications for service information developer

- Knowledge of any healthcare payer system would be preferred
- Intermediate level)
- Intermediate level in creating Data Flow diagrams, Process Flow Diagrams, Architecture diagrams, Data Model Diagrams
- Good College or School Level Knowledge of software and programming languages