Our innovative and growing company is hiring for an UX researcher. To join our growing team, please review the list of responsibilities and qualifications.

Responsibilities for UX researcher

- Assisting with user testing preparation activities and running usability testing sessions
- Plan, recruit, and conduct usability studies on-site, in the field, remote, or unmoderated
- Assist in defining and refining UX research processes in agile to improve the impact and promote the value of user research, and ensure execution
- Train peers and other team members in proper testing techniques
- Partner with Product Managers and User Experience Designers to identify highest-impact areas of research
- Define, plan, conduct, and analyze user research to validate designs and support new product development
- Communicate findings and recommendations in compelling/creative ways
- Develop Craftsy's research practice as the first UX Researcher on the team
- Design research that distills project goals and research questions into well thought-out research plans
- Design, develop and launch experiments, and conduct statistical analyses to understand users' experience, both in lab tests and on crowd platforms (for example, using Amazon Mechanical Turk)

Qualifications for UX researcher

- Demonstrated interest in tangential fields such as visual design, product design, design research, big data, fine art, music, writing and communications
- 3-5 of experience conducting user experience research and integrating

- 2+ years research experience w/a master's in computer science, human computer interaction, cognitive science, experimental psychology, anthropology, information science or related field
- 2 years of experience with user research that has truly impacted product design
- Complete confidence conducting full lifecycle research projects, including lab studies